Without this local event, county students would generally be traveling to Lansing, Ann Arbor, Flint, or metro Detroit to experience live theatre. Recall "Snoopy" for the 01-02 school year, "Christmas Pageant" for 02-03, and "A Thousand Cranes" for the 03-04 school year.

CTH's 2005 production, "Round the World and Back Again" (by Stephen Murray) is brought to you by the same team who led "A Thousand Cranes" last school year. The Directors are Shelley Walker and Jay Ahmad. The Producers are Sherry Randall and Patti Burke. The 35 members in the cast range from six to 18 years of age, and are from Livingston County.

This wild history lesson presents a fresh perspective as to who, what, where, when and how this crazy planet and its people came to be. From dinosaur extinction to space exploration, they're all rediscovered in this clever, chaotic, comical cataclysm of creativity. Doing their best to contribute to the world's development are the solar system (each planet has his or her own personality); the dinosaurs (the herbivores are higher class than the lowly carnivores); the first humans (totally clueless!); and the daring, early explorers including Columbus with his first Earth-o-rama (a globe!). In case you are curious, scientists prefer potato salad.

*Ready everyone?
Let's orbit!*
